Senor Ryan de Acuna's Pamphlet on the Cuban Question. A Spanish acquaintance of mine has just placed in my inde a copy of Secor Ryan de Acuna's important pamphlet on "The Cuban Question at the Commencement of 1856," which I see by the correspondence of the London journals has created some sensation in Madrid. The views which the writer takes of the true policy of Spain, with

The writer commences by observing that there are two Csars in Europe, and that under any circumstances, whether of peace or of war, they will always take care not to require of one another any concession that may dimnash their authority over the people. That Spain plays now a precarious and humiliating part among the European natious, no greater proof, in the opinion of the auther, can be adduced than the treaty for securing her the possession of Cube, an arrangement which he asserts to be a fact. The writer says that Mr. Powall, Lewtenant Governor of New Jersey, was the first who in 1755 prophesied that in the course of time a federation would arise in North America, comprising the Antillea-that subsequently a plan was favorably received by the British Governor for the sciure of this Entilled Governor for the sciure of this Entilled Governor for the sciure of the Entilled Governor for the Sciure and even to the peace of the whole Union. English influence over apprentices which she liberates, or openly requires to be liberated, nouries to a be liberated, not peak for the protectorate over Cuo a impairs the principle of Spanish condective soversignty and forces Span to follow the deatiny which the Western Powers may be pleased to assign her; and in case of war nacessarily puts Caba in the hands of the allies. Cuba, in a rupture with the United States, may be the means of such injury as will decitory the equilibrium among the belligerents, and bring victory to the ments of the United States, and perhaps jeopardize both the hattitutions and national existence of the latter. Way will Spain compromise the fate of her colony, the pace of her neighbors, her own safety, and the policy of the world, to preserve a vicient dominion over the colony? The American republic does not impose terms. She states reasonable grounds of silarm, and naturally desires to see them taken away. On one point the United St where security, and growing and rapid developement may be given to her interests. A nation on the Mediterranean sea, identifies in pursuits and common social interests, would be invaluable. The distinct nature of the products of both countries, the liberal commencial policy advised by good sense, the similarity in political creed, and the agyrandizement of Spain, not to be expected under her European rulers, have caused the American statesment to look to the latter as the proper nation for an important and sincere European alliance.

But even if this be refused, the American government would recommend the policy in the administration of the colony approved by ince liberal party while in the opposition—this may take away the danger for the immediate neighbors. The Americans do not wish to rob Cuba, although they believe that in the natural course of inevitable events, Cuba must be annexed to the Union. Only the right of self-preservations could authorize its seizure. American policy considers the Antilles a source of great danger to the public order of the States, and with these convictions rather than continue to put up with the chances of that disturbing cause, (if Spain did not adopt very soon precautions against the source of evil.) would try to dispet the dangers through their own efforts, by enteraoring to take possession of the territory whence it comes. To defend our own existence is not to attack the rights of another.

Pinale of the Session—Legislative Sobbath Breakers—Constitution of the Board of Claims—The Corporal Trim of the White House Promoted a Step, do., do.

The Thirty-third Congress expired at meridian to day, and the groams and contortions of an assembled and highly excited audience. Colonel Benton left at 12 o clock last night, contending, as John QuincylAdams did in 1835, that "the evening and the morning was the in 1895, that "the evening and the morning was the first day," and the divine division of time. Col. Benton is probably right, and the desceration of the Sabbath, "that point of time snatched from the rapacity of man" should have been avoided. Colonel Benton went to church, and set an example worthy of all imitation, church, and set an example worthy of all imitation, while some men professing goodiness were numbered with Sabbath breakers and transgressors, among whem I am sorry to say, was the great Texas Senator, teneral Sam Houston, of whom better things might have been expected—jea, even things which accompany salvation.

The bill providing for the officers of the Texas Navy was lost between the two houses. It is a very proper loss.

was lost between the two houses. It is a very proper loss.

The Board of Claims is complete, consisting of three judges learned in the law, a solicitor and a clerk or two. Montgomery Blair, Eaq., is the solicitor. He is spoken of as emisently qualified, possessing legal acumen and croffition, with an integrity almost obsolete in these solicitors, with an integrity almost obsolete in these solicitors, and the contemporary of the increase, provides for some peta.

The Late Revolution in Peru.
PROTEST OF EX-PRESIDENT ECHINIQUE.
General Echinique, ex-President of Peru, who has lately arrived in this city, has addressed a protest to the Supreme Court of Peru, against the late revolutionary movement, of which the following is a translation:—

To THE PRESIDENT OF THE MOST EXCELLENT SUPREME COURT OF PREU:—

SIR.—The late events in Peru are universally known, and the fact by which, after a battle in which the forces of the government were conquered by the revolutionary troops, I was deprived of the supreme command of the republic, to which I held for about four years, wanting only a little more than two to finish the peried when I should have to resign the power entrusted to me to a successor appointed according to the same rules of popular election, fixed by the constitution.

That constitution, which is the fundamental pact under which the country is governed, and without whose dispessitions legitimate power cannot be exercised, as it declares, making null everything done by those who usurp the command, as has now happened, can no more be changed except by the representatives of the people in legal congress, by peaceful discussion, without the intervention of tumuit, violence, or deeds of arms, all which are illegitimate means, condemned by the law, and contrary to the order of society.

If have been accused of illegal actions and abuses of the administration, as is always done to justify revolutions, that same constitution which determines the only mode of obtaining the command of the republic, and of changing its institutions, also fives the means of censuring the President and deposing him, orderly and in a moral manner, compatible with the public as fety and peace. It cannot be said that, in my time, the legitimite authorities have wanted sufficient liberty to exercise their legal jurisdiction over my acts, or my person, in case the pretexts assumed for overthrowing the government lade been well founded.

Among those accusations are some which assail my honor and reputation, in the most sensible manner, and also involve the dishour of the country itself: and if, when I was deprived of power and my person insulted and threatmed, as well as th

The details of the monster fusion mass meeting was arranged by the Society.

THE WEATHER.—Yesterday was pleasantly though un-aunny until evening, when the sky became overcast and the rain came pattering down. It continued this way until a late hour, giving every promise of a rain sterm. This, by the way, would do no harm just now, as the streets want wash up addly, and a heavy rain would cleanest be city of much of the filth it now con-tains. Would that it would rain. A CAUTION AGAINST MEDILING WITH GAS METERS—Mr. B. J. Noggs, collector for the Light and Gas Company, while on his rounds, called at 45½ Carmine street, a fancy store, to collect a gas bill. The lady in attendance said they had not burned any gas for the last two months, as the pipes were obstructed, and they could get to light. After being forthid by Mr. Noggs to put a rights of match to the place where she supposed the leak was, she went and turned on the tull force of the gas, which flashed out and burned her face and set fire to the goods in the window; and if Mr. Noggs had not happened to have been there, the house would have been entirely consumed. As it was, about $20 damage was done. The leak was on the top of the meter, at the inlist unfounding and was in consequence of its not being acrewed down, some person unknown had been putting in alcohol to prevent the water freezing, and had not screwed it down again. All persons are equested by the pradicat of the company, for the future, not to meddle with their meters.
